

Energy Markets Editor

Job Title: Energy Markets Editor – Houston, TX

Detailed job description

We are looking for an experienced editor to edit Poten's suite of multi-client reports covering the global LNG and LPG markets and to produce and write some of a quarterly long-term LNG forecast.

The candidate must have experience in copy editing long-form reports and publications and other materials that requires coordinating between teams for content and coverage.

Core tasks:

- Edit most or all copy produced by Poten's Business Intelligence division for style and content. This includes five monthly publications and several quarterly products.
- Manage data and editorial input from Poten's consulting group for the company's 10-year LNG forecast.
 - Write the introduction and summaries for various sections of the forecast
 - Manage the production of the quarterly forecast, including coordinating layout and graphics with the data forecasting team and graphics team
- Implement the Poten style across the group
- Must be able to work under pressure to meet publishing deadlines
- Energy and commodity markets experience is strongly preferred

Required Qualifications

- Bachelor's degree
- Proficient in the Microsoft office suite.
- Deep management experience in the publishing sector
- Strong analytical skills
- An eye for detail and dedication to accuracy
- Experience in energy markets and forecasting

To be considered for this position, please email your resume to Jason Feer jfeer@poten.com.

About Poten:

Poten & Partners is a leading provider of oil and gas market research, consulting and freight and commodity brokerage services. With offices in Houston, New York, London, Perth, Athens, Singapore and Guangzhou, Poten has a global team that provides clients with premium services and valuable information and analysis. Using our proprietary databases, our dedicated teams of experts with decades of market expertise provide in depth research reports that offer unparalleled insight.

Poten is the largest oil tanker and LNG tanker brokerage in the world, and has a significant presence in the LNG, LPG, naphtha and asphalt markets.